Harding Plans To Call Parley On Finance

PRESIDENT MAY CALL ECONOMIC PARLEY ON CASE OF EUROPE SOON

Meeting to Discuss Financial Situation Abroad Likely After Election.

NEED FOR CONFERENCE

Germany and Russia Will Probably Be Invited to Join Discussion.

By International News Service.

Belief that President Harding will call an international financial and economic conference at the first available opportunity was enhanced last night by statements that the President had practically determined upon plans for such a meeting even before the Genoa conference was called.

As long ago as last December it was said on high authority, officials of the Administration approached M. Vignani, then a delegate to the arms conference, to ascertain the views of the French government toward a financial conference to be called in Washington, with the principal European nations attending. Germany and Russia were included in the proposed plan, it is stated.

The French government at that time, it is stated, was favorably inclined toward such a plan, and the approval of M. Briand, then premier, was assured. Announcement was then made of the Genoa conference, however, and the agenda for that parley proved of such nature that the United States could not participate.

Officials here believe that the Genoa conference did much to prove to European statesmen the impracticability of attempting to deal with the European economic and financial situation except in a sweeping and comprehensive way.

However, President Harding will not call such a conference until after the forthcoming elections, and presumably not if the Allies persist in imposing limitations upon its scope.

Now the fourth city in the United States, Detroit may be rapidly lifted to third, and then to second place, by this new development. Chicago and Philadelphia take warning; also self-satisfied New York.

Mr. Daugherty's ruling, obeying the law and common sense, forbids the carrying of alcoholic drinks on any ship within three miles of any coast owned by the United States.

The foreign ships will get around it some way, undoubtedly. Vessels of the Shipping Board will obey the law, which means that their passenger traffic will be ruined.

Privately owned American ships will obey more or less—less probably.

As for American yachts, if you think they will obey this ruling any more than they have obeyed the Volstead law, you do not know how things are managed in the United States.

The decision of Mr. Daugherty and the President is the only one possible. On American ships American laws apply against prohibition as against murder or theft.

It is suggested that the ruling will placate ultra-prohibitionists and make them consent to a ship subsidy. But the ruling also, unfortunately, will make the subsidy worthless. The good American water drinker changes when he starts for Europe. He will take boats that give what he wants. Even this country is hardly rich enough to run great ships empty.

The idea of the subsidy is to supply us with ships that would be useful in war. That means the fast ship, to carry troops and escape submarines and torpedo

JAILED AGAIN

WILLIAM BUTLER, Alleged head of exclusive "badger" game gang, who has been caught in Baltimore. Several Washington people were his victims.

CAPTURE ALLEGED BADGER GAME HEAD

Police Assert That William Butler Was Principal in Cairo Affair.

William Butler, said by the police to be the master-mind of the conspiracy which resulted in the "badger game" extortion of $1,750 in cash and a diamond ring valued at approximately $250 from George V. Whittle, of Seattle, Wash., was arrested in Baltimore yesterday and will probably have to face charges of counterfeiting of War Savings Stamps.

It is said that Butler counterfeited a number of War Savings Stamps when he lived in Newark, N. J. Butler was turned over by the authorities of the Monumental City to Detective Sergeant Sweeney, Waldron, and Murphy, of the Central office.

Questioned by Inspector Clifford L. Grant, chief of detectives, Butler refused to make any statement that in any way would incriminate him. The police say Butler is a notorious "badger game" operator, and they expect J. Franklin Austin, his wife, Florence, and John M. Brown, of Philadelphia, who are the principals in the badger game pulled off at the Cairo Hotel, to give damaging testimony against Butler when he is booked for trial.

Storm Warnings On Atlantic Coast

The Weather Bureau announced last night that storm warnings had been displayed on the Atlantic Coast from Delaware Breakwater northward, except southeast warnings on the coast of Maine.

A storm of marked intensity, central over Lake Erie, will move rapidly northeastward, attended by increasing southeast and south winds today, becoming strong and possibly reaching gale force and shifting to westerly.

Steamships Crash Off San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 7.—The Union Oil Tanker Lyman Stewart, bound from San Francisco for Los Angeles, and the freighter Walter A. Luckenbach, en route from Boston to San Francisco, collided in a dense fog off the San Francisco lightship late today.

The Lyman Stewart was the most seriously damaged and was beached at Point Lobos, at the entrance to the Golden Gate, where her cargo of oil is being removed. The Luckenbach sustained a badly damaged bow, but was able to proceed to her dock, so far as can be ascertained no one was injured.

1 Killed, 25 Hurt, As Electric Trains Collide

CLEVELAND, Oct. 7.—The motor-man on an Akron limited car on the Northern Ohio traction line was reported to have been killed and twenty-five passengers injured, seriously when the limited collided with a Bedford local late tonight, according to reports here.

Police emergency cars and ambulances were rushed to the scene of the accident.

DE VALERA READY FOR PEACE PARLEY

Irregulars' Chief Now Said to Be in Dublin to Meet Free State Heads.

ISLAND TIRED OF STRIFE

Agitation for Republic May Be Continued If Carried on by Lawful Means.

By DENIS O'CONNELL, Special Cable to Universal Service.

DUBLIN, Oct. 7.—Eamonn de Valera, accompanied by Austin Stack and a number of other irregular leaders, is said to be in Dublin ready to undertake peace negotiations with the Free State government.

De Valera, it is said, at last realizes that there is no hope that the irregulars can cope successfully at arms with the government forces, and is prepared to compromise in the hope of effecting a settlement with the Free State leaders, with out his men being required to turn in their arms.

President Cosgrave says there is absolutely no chance that the government will make any peace with the irregulars until they surrender, accepting the offer of complete amnesty recently announced.

There is no objection, on the part of the Free State, against De Valera continuing his campaign for the Irish republic, if he does it by constitutional methods.

It is now understood that De Valera is willing to negotiate because of a growing unrest among his followers, many of whom are opposed to further strife against their own brothers.

On the other hand, a strong faction of younger men oppose peace, and are determined to continue guerrilla tactics.

De Valera and Stack are in Dublin, without doubt, but they have not made any public appearance. Stack is reported to have sent word that De Valera is ready for peace. If either of the irregular leaders have met members of the government, the fact has been kept secret.

Government Seizes Seventy Breweries

The Government's war on real beer sales has resulted in seizures of seventy breweries, which are now under guard by enforcement agents. Prohibition Commissioner Haynes announced last night. In many cases jail sentences were imposed upon owners of the breweries, and fines and penalties aggregating $700,000 were paid into the Treasury.

Commissioner Haynes said that enforcement has resulted in assessments amounting to $24,000,000 being levied upon violators of the Volstead act. During the past year property seized was valued at $8,000,000. Approximately $1,800,000 has been paid into the Treasury in settlements reached with liquor law litigants.

Creasy Sentenced To Electric Chair

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 7.—William Creasy, the "Kentucky Sweetheart," was sentenced by Judge Smith today to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison during the week of November 6.

Creasy, of Fort Thomas, Ky., was convicted of murdering Miss Edith Lavoy, Freeport (N. Y.) school teacher, as she lay in his arms in her apartment. The condemned man declared the girl had committed suicide with a gun she took from his pocket.

Several Injured When Bus Hits Street Car

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Several persons were injured, three so seriously they were taken to a hospital, in a collision between a motor bus and a street car in the Sheepshead Bay section of Brooklyn late this afternoon. The bus, carrying thirty passengers, was overturned.

All of the injured were aboard the bus.

BAD BASE RUNNING COSTS YANKS GAME

Huggins' Men Go Wild on Paths and Lose Chance To Tie.

LEADERSHIP IS LACKING

Giants Bunch Their Hits in Fifth and Sew Up Fourth Contest.

By DAVIS J. WALSH, International News Service Sports Editor.

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Had the Headless Horseman of Ichabod Crane's day been a ballplayer he would have run bases as the New York Yankees did in the ninth inning of this afternoon's world series game.

It was an exhibition of sheer stupidity which parallels nothing seen in a world series game of recent years, and the Giants took due advantage of it to retire the side and ride home to a 4-to-3 decision.

Yanks Just Ran.

The Yanks didn't run wild. They merely ran, and that after the manner of a decapitated chicken. Needing only one run to tie, their opening batter got to second with none out, their second got on by killing off the first, and the third singled into deep center. Yet the run never scored.

It was a laundry ticket anyway you look at it. There is no answer outside of baseball's primary grades. Pipp started the inning with a double down the right-field line, and for no sane reason batted off second base when Bob Meusel slipped one down to Groh and was run down on the line before Meusel could advance. Net result: Instead of having the tying run on second with none out, it was moved back to first with one out. At this juncture, Schang smote a long single to left center and anguished Yankee fans drew a mental picture of the eliminated Pipp coasting in with the tying run. The blow sent Meusel to third and the wily Giants thereupon set a trap for Schang when Cunningham purposely made the throw to third when second base was the obvious spot and none other.

Play Smart Baseball.

Schang was naive enough to fall for it and dashed blithely toward second; whereupon Bancroft bobbed up from nowhere, intercepted the throw and nipped Schang a foot from the bag with a deft toss to Frisch. Ward then furnished the third out with a fly to E. Meusel. So much for the denouement of the plot.

The Giants had only one big moment. It was enough. In the fifth they climbed aboard the lumbering Carl Mays, who had been playing human pulmotor to waning Yankee hopes, and with a combination of hits, plus downright luck, scored four runs. Three of the hits in this inning were blatantly impure, and all of them figured in the scoring.

The detailed game, play by play, will be found on the Sporting Pages.

Receiver Appointed For Templar Motors

CLEVELAND, Oct. 7.—T. L. Hausmann was today appointed receiver of the Templar Motors Company by Judge D. C. Westenhaver in Federal court here.

Upon his appointment Hausmann ordered the plant shut down in order that an inventory might be taken, when operations will be resumed.

Appeals to the Eye

"It was as if we were witnessing a series of moving reproductions of the pictures and frescoes of some of the greatest masters of the nineteenth century. Many of them might have been directly inspired by, if not actually copied from, the pictures of Jean Paul Laurens and others on the walls of the Paris Hotel De Ville or the Pantheon. It is a film that makes appeal exclusively to the eye."

This is typical of the manner in which the film is presented.

Grecian Shores Like New Dante's Inferno, Asserts Von Wiegand

Half Million Human Beings Are in Process of Deportation by Turkish Soldiers Amid Scenes of Horror Rarely Paralleled.

By KARL VON WIEGAND, Universal Service Staff Correspondent. (Copyright, 1922, by Universal Service.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 7.—A Dante's Inferno in human emotions—scenes of heart rending pathos and human tragedies so appalling as to carry one back to the darker ages—is transpiring on the shores of the Aegean and Marmora seas.

While statesmen are pitting the ingenuity of diplomatic wit against one another for reasons of national prestige or selfish interests, and generals meeting in conferences debate war or peace, the individual mere pawn in the great game is ignored and lost sight of.

Half a million human beings have been or will be evacuated and deported from hearth and home, abandoning or despoiled of all they possess. Thousands of families will be separated never to meet again. Husbands are torn from wives, fathers from children, brothers from sisters.

The Turkish newspaper Teyhida reports that 407,000 Armenians and Greeks have already been evacuated, deported or have enlisted.

Few can realize what such forced migration under fear of death of panic-stricken babies and the aged and abandoned means, or picture the appalling suffering of the sick, or of mothers giving birth to babies in the public highways in sight of gaping crowds.

The vast majority are torn root and limb from their homes. Some are carrying a little bedding. Thousands have not even a change of clothes.

Hungry, hopeless and despairing, they are driven like cattle and dumped upon the islands or mainland of Greece, which is utterly unable to absorb or take care of or feed this stream of misery flowing daily from the Asiatic shores.

Everything that is left behind is lost. The Ankara government, I am informed, has issued a decree that abandoned property which is not claimed within a specified time, reverts to the government. This amounts to millions of dollars.

Greeks and Armenians did the chief business and were large property holders in Smyrna and elsewhere, especially Constantinople. An American official just back from Smyrna, and whose integrity is unquestioned, has given me the following glimpses of evacuation scenes which I describe in his words:

LONDON'S CRITICS LAUD WONDER FILM

"When Knightwood Was in Flower" Acclaimed by British As Greatest Picture.

By FORBES W. FAIRBAIRN, Universal Service.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—"When Knightwood Was in Flower" is one of the most beautiful specimens of the film producer's art that the world has yet seen. Large audiences are sitting entranced as scene after scene, each almost perfect in its way, is unrolled before them."

Thus the London Daily Telegraph approved Marion Davies' wonder film, which is nightly drawing record audiences at the Scala Theater.

Distinguished Clientele.

With the Prince of Wales gracing the theater at the opening performance, no playhouse in London is able to equal the Scala's illustrious and distinguished clientele which is applauding the great picture of King Henry the Eighth's time. The Telegraph continues:

"Now we are witnessing high revelry in the court of England; and we crossed the channel and were in the court of France. Here was a lovely woodland scene, its subdued tones resembling an ancient tapestry, followed by a magnificent scene of royal progress through Paris that put to shame almost anything of a similar kind yet accomplished."

GREEKS AGREE TO EVACUATION OF THRACE; END OF HOSTILITIES

Negotiations a Victory for French Diplomacy, But British Are Satisfied.

ALLIES TO AID IN POLICING

"Christian Minority" Problem Sidestepped by Demand That Civilians Go.

By FRANK E. MASON, International News Service.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Peace in the Near East was made a virtual certainty tonight when Eleutherios Venizelos, former Greek premier, acting in behalf of the revolutionary government at Athens, accepted the Anglo-French compromise agreement that had been adopted by Premier Poincare and Lord Curzon, British foreign secretary, earlier in the day.

Mudania Is Notified.

Instructions have been sent to the allied generals at Mudania, and it is expected that the armistice negotiations will be wound up immediately.

Under the terms of the Anglo-French settlement, the Turks will be empowered to organize constabulary to assist the British, French and Italians in policing Thrace, but will not be allowed to send an army into Thrace.

The Turks will be ordered to retire from eastern Thrace, that portion of European soil promised to Turkey in the allies' Near East note of September 23.

The Turks will be allowed to establish civil administration in Thrace under allied supervision.

The Turkish straits will be neutralized, but the British insist upon retaining their position at Chanak, on the Dardanelles Narrows.

Arrangements will be made at once for two Near East peace conferences. The first will open at Scutari, in the Balkans, some time before November 10. This conference will draw up the Near East peace treaty.

A second will be held in Geneva, under supervision of the League of Nations, to arrange the conditions for neutralization of the Turkish straits. A league commission will be appointed to control the straits.

Russia May Send Envoy.

It is learned from French sources that Russia may be invited to send an observer to the conference regarding the Turkish straits. This envoy, it was said, would not have authority to assist in framing decisions, but would be able to express Russia's opinions.

Formal demand upon Greece to begin withdrawal of troops from Thrace is expected to go forward immediately. In this connection, news came from the Greek capital this afternoon that the Greek government had just negotiated a great loan from the Greek National Bank for "military purposes."

According to the newspaper La Liberte, the allies have decided upon a drastic step to evade the problem of protecting the minority (Christian) population in the European districts that Turkey will take over. The Greek troops and civilians are both to be evacuated at the same time, La Liberte reveals.

All persons speaking Greek must leave with the soldiers, leaving only Turkish Mohammedans behind.

To Prevent Massacres.

The allied military authorities at Constantinople are under instructions to take safeguarding measures to prevent massacres in Thrace when the troop movements begin. It is likely that the allied generals will establish headquarters at Adrianople, one of the Thracian
